Riders' Smith to stand trial for brutal assault

Nightclub beating. Teammate Anderson has charge dropped

SARAH TAGUIAM
sarah.taguiam@metronews.ca

Saskatchewan Roughriders wide receiver Taj Smith will stand trial for aggravated assault, though the same charge against teammate and defensive back Dwight Anderson has been dropped.

After a two-day preliminary hearing in Regina's provincial court, a judge ruled on Thursday that there isn't enough evidence to proceed with a trial for Anderson.

"It's good to go back and concentrate about football," Anderson told reporters outside the downtown courthouse after the hearing wrapped up.

"We got this part of it out of the way and now, to be honest, let's move on."

Smith and Anderson were accused of beating a 20-year-old man in front of a crowd outside Regina's Pure Ultra Lounge last August. The altercation left the man with serious injuries.

Evidence presented in court was under a publication ban.

Smith will go on trial, the judge said. He left the courthouse without speaking to media.

"We expected he will be put to trial for these matters," said Crown attorney Adam Breker.

"The way the evidence came out, we put it before the judge and she made her determination — and after having heard all the evidence, it's not a huge surprise that she made the decision she did."

Anderson said the charge hadn't weighed on him in the past several months.

Moving on

"I'm just going to worry about my situation right now, and my situation is now dealt with."

Riders defensive back Dwight Anderson

"I know I didn't do anything, so I just knew I had to go through the court system and that was going to take time," Anderson said.

An aggravated assault charge against Roughriders wide receiver Eron Riley in the same incident was dropped on June 4.

Dates for Smith's trial have yet to be announced.

"I'm going to let (Smith) and his lawyers take care of that situation," Anderson said.

Saskatchewan Roughriders wide receiver Taj Smith, left, and defensive back Dwight Anderson leave provincial court in Regina on Thursday. Both players were charged following the beating of a man outside a Regina bar last August. The charge against Anderson was dropped, though Smith will continue to stand trial. Inset: Anderson said he's relieved that he won't go to trial after a judge found insufficient evidence to proceed against him. SARAH TAGUIAM/METRO

Union. 'No choice' but to ask for mediation

A union representing specialized health-care workers is appealing to the Saskatchewan government to bring in a mediator to restart stalled contract negotiations.

Karen Wasylenko, president of the Health Sciences Association of Saskatchewan, says the union has "no choice" but to lobby the government after talks with the Saskatchewan Association of Health Organizations (SAHO) reached an impasse.

She says negotiations broke down after SAHO abruptly cancelled four days of scheduled negotiations. "We were hoping that with the four days we wouldn't have to do this ... but they turned around and cancelled on us without giving any reason," Wasylenko told Metro on Thursday.

Doug Forseth, CEO of SAHO, said his organization is "disappointed" that the union has declared an impasse.

"We feel that more discussion and negotiation through the regular bargaining process was needed and could have gone forward," Forseth said.

According to Wasylenko, the primary issue for union members is "chronic understaffing" in health regions.

Forseth, however, refused to comment on the nature of the discussions with the union, stating that it's not "productive to negotiate in the media."

He added, though, that "there are still a lot of issues that need to be sorted through."

The union represents more than 3,400 specially trained workers including paramedics, hospital pharmacists and physical therapists.

Redblacks. Ottawa team to make debut at Mosaic Stadium

MARCO VIGLIOTTI
marco.vigliotti@metronews.ca

It is perhaps the most monumental exhibition game ever played at Mosaic Stadium.

And it owes none of its significance to its famed host team, the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

On Saturday, the Ottawa Redblacks will make their Canadian Football League debut in Regina against the Riders in both teams' first pre-season game of 2014.

"It's one of the most significant (milestones), because it actually has the team on the field playing football," Jeff Hunt, CEO of the Redblacks, told Metro, noting that the tilt is officially an Ottawa home game.

"It's been a long time coming."

The long-running first franchise in the nation's capital famously shared the Roughriders moniker — actually, Rough Riders — with Saskatchewan.

The exhibition opener was originally to be played in Ottawa, but was moved to Regina after Redblacks officials realized that the team's new stadium, TD Place, wouldn't be completed in time for the game.

Hunt said Mosaic Stadium was quickly identified as a suitable replacement, mainly because of the Green and White's strong fan support.

In Saskatchewan, he added, "CFL football is more important ... than anywhere else in the country."

Despite the distance, some Ottawa football fans are planning to make the trip to Regina for the game.

Joanne Pomalis, a former Regina resident living in Ottawa, is among them.

"Everyone in Ottawa is very excited to have football back," she said, adding that as a Riders fan she will root for Saskatchewan.

Background

The Redblacks are the third CFL franchise to call Ottawa home after their most recent predecessors, the Renegades, folded following the 2005 season.

Allergies are a modern epidemic

By Dr. Chakib Hammoud, M.H.,PhD.

What people experience: ■ I tried numerous other remedies all my life that were not effective. Since I discovered Bell Allergy Relief. I do not have a stuffy nose and itchy eyes when pollen season comes around. I don't have to walk around like a doped zombie anymore. Leonard Waldner, 44, Delia, AB ■ For 20 years my life was miserable with sneezing, watery eyes and sinus pressure year-round on most days. I was amazed. On 3rd day all allergies were gone. It was like magic. Becky Gerber, 25, Dover, OH ■ Golfing without allergy attacks I tried all the medications and none worked. After taking 1 capsule in the morning I'm completely free of all symptoms. Richard Gamez, 74, San Antonio, TX morning. Therese Noto, 58, New York, NY.

SNORING? SLEEP APNEA?

#23 NPN 80045172

As recommended by Dr. Gifford-Jones M. D. Helps to reduce the time it takes to fall a sleep. In most cases also stops snoring and gasping for air (sleep apnea) first night. Stops torturing your partner all night. Good sleep prevents being tired next day. Tired people work only at half capacity. What people truly experience: ■ I really didn't snore or gasp for air anymore. I sleep through the night and feel rested and refreshed in the morning. Mark Wilson, 40, Hudson, NH

■ Sleep apnea capsules worked first night! For last 15 years I had sleep apnea and my doctor made me buy a CPAP machine, which I could not use. Finally Bell #23 helped the first night and every night thereafter. Like a miracle. Unbelievable. Karen Braun, 67, Glace Bay, NS ■ For 20 years I was waking up frequently gasping for air. During the day I would start napping every time I would sit down, because I was tired. Since taking Bell #23 sleeping 6 hours is heaven. It made a substantial change in my life. Mary C. Myrick, 62, Jackson, MS ■ It is such a joy not having to use the CPAP machine. I have had sleep apnea for 10 years. Using Bell#23, my wife says there is no more snoring or stoppage of breathing. It is such a joy to be able to roll to left or right with no hose or mask to deal with. Thank you Bell for a great relief. I suggest anyone with these problems to try it. You will be overjoyed with the results. Wayne Burse, 63, Beamsville, ON.

ACNE
Eczema & Psoriasis

#60 NPN 80044199

Works by cleaning blood from the inside, instead of attacking skin with creams or washes from the outside and leaving actual cause untreated. Actual Results. ■ After 1 week my severe acne became quite mild and after 2 weeks it had completely vanished. I suffered for 5 stressful years of having acne and extremely dry, irritated skin. Bell Help for Skin Disorders"saved my life". My skin is now beautiful and you would never know I suffered from acne and other skin problems for years. Zach Lustgarten, 18, Oshawa, ON

RED NOSE/CHEEKS ROSACEA gone in less than a week. Was fighting it for 30 years with topical creams and prescriptions without getting satisfaction. I live a healthy life, don't smoke and don't drink. People thought a reddish face comes from drinking. This is a myth. Will take it for the rest of my life when needed. Donald E. Gillespie, 56, Innisfil, ON

PSORIASIS ■ I had severe psoriasis over 95% of my body. Last 5 years I have stunned every doctor and dermatologist. I spent tons of money on remedies. After I got Bell Help for Skin Disorders, I've never seen anything work as fast in my life. Within 2 days I saw my skin clearing up. I'm speechless. It was inexpensive compared with what I spent before. Jessica Shantz, 25, Dawson Creek, BC

ECZEMA For 6 years my family doctor and dermatologist tried many medications and creams. After taking Bell Help for Skin Disorders for just a few days my eczema itching stopped and my face started to clear up. After suffering so long I am amazed with the results. Andy Yuen, 58, Vancouver, BC

TIRED?
Middle-Age Energy Booster

#65 NPN 80044126

Doctors on the Dr. Oz TV Show said that the most frequent complaint they get is "Being Very Tired", some call it fatigue. They have no energy or interest to do anything. More food is not the answer. Drugs are not the answer either as the Johns Hopkins Medical School puts it: "The fact is, all medicines, whether OTC or prescription, carry some risk". It needs a "key" to rejuvenate your own natural systems that fell asleep. Bell provides that key with: Selenium, spermine and spermidine, which are polyamines found in radishes, cucumbers and oats as well as all human cells. Nothing could be more natural than topping off that supply. There is no risk. The Wayne State University researched these ingredients for years and Bell guarantees your satisfaction. It is all right to be skeptical and for that reason we show a few results below and have hundreds more, if you go on our website under #7 Erosyn, which has exactly the same ingredients. This rejuvenation means that most men and women may have youthful feelings again for their partner. Those who want it can resume their intimate relationship. We supply the proof that it works. If incontinence plays a role: McMaster University says that 65% of middle-aged women suffer with incontinence and this is the main reason why many withdraw from intimacy. This can be overcome within days by drinking the Bell Bladder Control Tea #4b available in the same stores as Middle-Age Energy Booster. No more rushing to the bathroom and no padding or diapers needed anymore. Many people wrote we changed their lives.

■ Bell Middle Age Energy Booster changed our lives. All I can say is am very satisfied and so is my lovely wife. I am so happy I have my youthful energy back. My wife thanks you too. Raoul Martin, 52, Woodstock, ON ■ I should have started using Bell Middle-Age Energy Booster years ago, when I noticed things were starting to slack off. The results were much better than I ever hoped for. David Buckley, 42, Peterborough, ON ■ Being in my forties I felt a loss of energy and zest for life. I have tried every product on the market. This Bell Middle-Age Energy Booster is the best preparation for aging people. A. J. Carisse, 44, Fredericton, NB

Province wants auditor to review French school board books

Money woes.
Financial concerns could leave teachers without a payday

The Saskatchewan government wants the province's auditor to take a look at the books of a French-language school board because of money problems.

Education Minister Don Morgan says he's concerned about the financial position of the Conseil scolaire fransaskois, which said earlier this month that it might not be able to pay teachers on time.

"The idea of paying a teacher late or not at all is something that's not acceptable," Morgan said on Thursday.

"They should not have to worry about whether they will have money for groceries or their own mortgage payments, so we will make sure that they get paid."

President Andre Denis says the board was audited by the province in 2012-13. He says if the provincial auditor accepts the mandate to review the books again, the board will co-operate.

"The CSF has undertaken concrete actions to stabilize the (board's) financial situation and to achieve a balanced budget in 2014-2015," said Denis.

"As with the ministry, the Conseil will await provincial auditor's recommendations following her assessment of the (board's) financial situation."

The board says it has already cut administrative jobs, reduced training and put prekindergarten for three-year-olds on hold in schools where there was an extra cost to staff the program to help address a $4.4-million shortfall.

Morgan said the French-language school board is challenged by having small classrooms in some remote areas, so it doesn't have the economies of scale. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Funding

Provincial funding to the board went to $31.4 million this year from $28 million last year, he said. The board gets $19,831 in funding per student, which is higher than the $10,981 public and Catholic boards get per student.

Highway lines ready to get fresh coat of paint

The highway painting season starts between mid-May and early June and ends in December. COURTESY MINISTRY OF HIGHWAYS

Saskatchewan's highways are getting a makeover, as the province has begun painting lines on more than 50,000 kilometres of roads.

The province's highway system — the largest in Canada per capita — undergoes line repainting every season, starting in mid-May or early June.

"Lines provide drivers with critical information about where their wheels should be and where they can safely pull over during an emergency situation. They also alert motorists to passing opportunities and intersection locations," Highways Minister Nancy Heppner said on Thursday in a release.

"Wear and tear from traffic, snowplow blades and the elements mean these important safety tools need to be repainted each year."

A total of 47,753 kilometres of centre and shoulder lines are set to be painted, along with 29,065 km of pavement signs such as those with arrows and stop bars.

All lines must be repainted by Dec. 15, according to Ministry of Highways spokesman Joel Cherry.

"Saskatchewan is growing, has a lot of harsh weather elements and has more traffic all the time," Cherry said, "and that affects all aspects of our transportation system including lines."

About 1.2 million litres of paint and 660,000 kilograms of spherical glass beads, which add reflection on paint for night driving, will be applied to the pavement.

Some left-over glass beads will also be used on the lines, Cherry added.

The entire project has a budget of $7.2 million.

Five paint trucks will travel the province to work on the lines. All drivers are asked to slow down to 60 km/h when passing the trucks with flashing lights.

"We ask that drivers follow this law to ensure their safety on the roads," Cherry added. SARAH TAGUIAM/METRO

BlackBerry intercepts used in mob crackdown

Project Clemenza.
Police say more than a million messages were analyzed as evidence, leading to arrest of 31 suspected gangsters

RCMP officer Michel Arcand speaks to reporters at RCMP headquarters in Montreal on Thursday, where he answered questions about Project Clemenza, a sweep of alleged organized crime groups in the province. GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police in Quebec say they used intercepted BlackBerry communications to take down two alleged organized crime groups operating in the province.

The RCMP said Thursday more than one million private messages were intercepted and analyzed as evidence as part of an operation dubbed Project Clemenza.

Officials from the RCMP and Montreal Police said it is the first time this investigative technique has been used on such a large scale in a criminal investigation.

"This is the most important interception of this kind performed as part of a major investigation in North America," RCMP Supt. Michel Arcand told a news conference.

"One million messages were intercepted between 2010 and 2012 (and) the investigation also included a complex analysis process."

The arrests are aimed at dismantling two cells which police say took over after Operation Colisee seven years ago, an operation aimed at their predecessors.

Police described the cells as linked to Italian-based organized crime in Montreal.

Police said they arrested 31 people in Montreal, Quebec City, Laval and Gatineau.

Islamic militants vow to march to Baghdad

Islamic militants who seized cities and towns vowed Thursday to march on Baghdad to settle old scores, joined by Saddam Hussein-era loyalists and other disaffected Sunnis capitalizing on the government's political paralysis over the biggest threat to Iraq's stability since the U.S. withdrawal.

The militants also declared they would impose Shariah law in Mosul and other areas they captured.

Three planeloads of Americans were being evacuated from a major Iraqi airbase north of Baghdad, U.S. officials said, and Germany urged its citizens to immediately leave parts of Iraq, including Baghdad.

The UN Security Council met on the crisis, underscoring the growing international alarm over the advances by fighters from the group known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

World Cup revelry matched by rage as protests get violent

Turmoil in host cities.
Black Bloc adherents infect crowd angered by billions spent on sport

Protesters and Brazilian police clashed in Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro and at least three other World Cup cities on Thursday, around the first match of soccer's premier event.

Just after the match started, about 300 protesters marched along Rio's Copacabana beach to denounce lavish spending on a sports tournament in a nation with profound social needs.

The protest was peaceful, but there were worries that could change as adherents to the anarchist "Black Bloc" tactic were seen in the crowd.

Violence did break out elsewhere.

In Sao Paulo, more than 300 demonstrators gathered along a main highway leading to the stadium. Some tried to block traffic, but police repeatedly pushed them back using tear gas and stun grenades.

A few protesters suffered injuries after being hit by rubber bullets, while others choked on tear gas.

An Associated Press photographer was injured in the leg after a stun grenade exploded near him. CNN reported on its website that two of its journalists were also injured.

"We're in a country where the money doesn't go to the community, and meanwhile we see all these millions spent on stadiums," said student Tameres Mota, a protester at the Sao Paulo demonstration.

Meanwhile, about 300 protesters gathered in central Rio de Janeiro; police took a few into custody.

In Belo Horizonte, about 200 clashed with police, some smashing doors and windows.

About 1,000 gathered in Porto Alegre, with some breaking property and hurling stones, authorities said. Police scattered about 150 protesters in the capital city of Brasilia, according to a local newspaper. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Papal pep talk

Let's see a good clean game out there: Pope

Pope Francis has a message for the World Cup: Let soccer be a showcase for teamwork and solidarity, not racism and greed.

The Argentine-born Pope recorded a video that aired on Brazilian TV ahead of Thursday's opening match.

In it, Francis said soccer teaches three lessons that can promote peace and solidarity: the need to work hard to reach goals, the importance of fair play and teamwork and the need to respect opponents.

"To win, we must overcome individualism, selfishness, all forms of racism, intolerance and manipulation of people," he said. He said being "greedy" in soccer, as in life, is an obstacle.

Francis, a lifelong fan of the Buenos Aires club San Lorenzo, has amassed an enormous collection of jerseys since his election and has met with many visiting teams. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tegan and Sara share a few words about other LGBTQ Canadian musicians online at metronews.ca

Year after year, album after album, our music has offered our fans a soundtrack for their experiences in life and love. The process of sharing our music with our fans and having them share their experiences with us is a cathartic cycle. As we have become more successful, that cathartic cycle has become about much more than love and loss in the romantic realm. Fans aren't just sharing stories about heartbreak related to romance, they are sharing stories about heartbreak related to being LGBTQ: Awful tales of being kicked out of their houses for being gay; sad stories about their parents forbidding them to see their same-sex partners; gut-wrenching accounts about being bullied at school because they are queer.

As sad as these stories have been, increasingly they've started to have a current of hopefulness pulsing through them. One after another, our LGBTQ fans have told us our music is helping them through. Parents have started coming to our shows with their LGBTQ teenagers to thank us for being role models. They have questions and worries just like our Mom did when we came out: Will the world accept my child? Can my child still be successful and gay? The answer is yes. Emphatically, yes. We hope our success brings peace to these parents and reassurance to the young LGBTQ people we talk to each day. Most of all we hope to continue to be a beacon of change to the mainstream.

When we started our career 16 years ago, we did not have the foresight to know how significant being out would be to our career and lives. However, we always had an instinct that being open and honest about our sexuality — with media and fans alike — was the only way to live in our public life. It felt counterintuitive to hide who we were when our music was so sincere and transparent. Sara and I were aware that our career and audience would be better served by brutal honesty and openness rather than omissions about our experiences as gay people. How could we possibly sell our music if we weren't open about the content of the music?

Looking back, I'm proud that we had the fortitude to withstand some of the sexism and homophobia we faced. Though, truthfully, when I reflect on those early days, I don't often see us struggling or hurting over these obstacles. I just see two really strong kids, irritatingly confident, forging ahead in face of anything that was thrown our way — just like I see so many of our young fans in the LGBTQ community doing themselves today.

Tegan and Sara, always open about their sexuality, "hope to continue to be a beacon of change to the mainstream." LINDSEY BYRNES

With this issue of Metro, we aim to introduce you to a legion of queer heroes we admire. Young people who are making big changes, not only in the LGBTQ world, but also the mainstream. We want to focus on the success stories from our community and the incredible work being done by amazing queer people in Canada!

Revelling in a riotous rainbow of messages

A picture's worth a thousand words. Emy Storey's Revel & Riot T-shirts speak for themselves

AUSTEN GILLILAND
For Metro

It was only natural that Emy Storey would eventually turn her hand to a project beyond designing band T-shirts and album cover art.

"I had wanted for a long time to fuse the personal and political and pursue a project that was involved with gay rights," says the Montreal-based graphic designer about the impulse that led her to start Revel & Riot.

"In terms of graphics representing the movement, there really hadn't been a lot. You'd go into a gay bookstore and you'd try to buy a T-shirt and it always looked the same," she says, referring to the rainbow and pink triangle designs — images that haven't changed much since the 1970s.

So Storey applied her graphic design talents to the problem, creating new takes on the classic imagery and printing them on T-shirts.

"Especially with something like personal identity, expressing your support for LGBTQ people or trying to express that fact about yourself, a T-shirt seems like a really great medium, because you wear it on your chest," she says. "You really can't get any more personal than that."

The images are intriguing, thought-provoking, and resonate deeply with the cause.

Take, for example, Storey's rainbow mountain design. "I wanted to pay respect to the rainbow — it's beautiful, it's something that brings gay people a lot of comfort and pride and recognizability, but I wanted to do something new with it," she says.

Thinking of the ongoing struggle of the LGBTQ community's fight for equality, she says, "I had this idea of a mountain, and how in fact despite all the progress (we've made), there's so much more mountain to climb." It's one of Revel & Riot's most popular T-shirts.

Other designs, including Life Goes By Too Quickly, a re-imagining of the LGBTQ acronym, and We Are the Gay Kids, a representation of the diversity of the LGBTQ community, are available on the website; products include buttons, tote bags and paintings, with prices ranging from $5 to $500.

Proceeds from sales fund the organization's work promoting LGBTQ rights, awareness and equality. Revel & Riot also provides a wide range of LGBTQ resources online, including a database of community organizations, articles and videos. But it always comes back to the art.

"It's interesting what graphics can do," Storey says.

"It's profoundly important to have writing and resources and material available to support the message ...

"But good graphics can bring people to the cause in the first place. It catches someone's eye, they share the image — it's a very effective way to get a message across quickly."

Good graphics! Designer Emy Storey promotes equality with her message T-shirts. EMILIE DESRUE

Emy Storey became the official Tegan and Sara art director in 2003. Emy designs album concepts, album artwork, websites, marketing materials, stage backdrops and — perhaps most importantly — she is the integral force behind our band merchandising. Emy has helped create a vast collection of designs that allowed us to launch each new campaign with pride. She turned an important part of our business into a fundamental part of our band's culture. In recent years, Emy founded Revel & Riot — a company to support LGBTQ rights through art, resources and T-shirts — and she continues to inspire us with her unique design and passionate politics. Tegan and Sara has become a band that's known almost as much for its esthetic as for its music, and this we owe almost solely to Emy Storey. Our favourite design — and it's hard to say after 11 years of working together! — was our most recent collaboration with Revel & Riot for last summer's tour with Fun. The Animals T-shirt captured the spirit of Revel & Riot and Tegan and Sara perfectly, and it flew off the shelves. SARA QUIN

The filmmaker's progress

What I Love About Being Queer. From short film to Tumblr account to book: The evolution of Vivek Shraya's multimedia project

AUSTEN GILLILAND
For Metro

Vivek Shraya's project funds an LGBTQ student leadership award. CONTRIBUTED

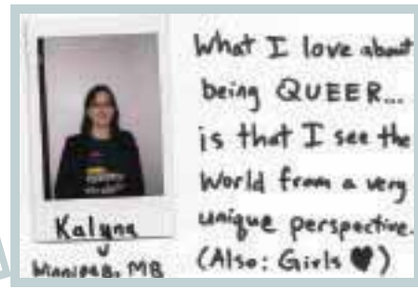
"I try to focus on the ways the world has gotten better for queer people, especially in my lifetime," says Vivek Shraya, "but hearing people who are 10 years younger than I am going through the same thought processes I was going through when I was coming out — 'My parents won't accept me. I think I'm disgusting. Is this a phase? Will it go away?' — that self-hate, I find really disturbing."

Shraya is a human rights adviser by day, a musician, filmmaker and author by night. It was his interactions with the LGBTQ students he met through his work for Diversity, Equity and Human Rights Services at Toronto's George Brown College that inspired one of his biggest projects to date: What I Love About Being Queer.

"I wanted to create a project that showcased the positive aspects of being queer," he says. "To say to these students, 'Hey, you know, this complicated part of yourself that you don't know how to reconcile right now is also something that makes you beautiful. It's something that should be celebrated.'"

To answer their questions, he asked one of his own. "I thought, Why not ask people what they love about being queer?" Shraya says. It was a question he wasn't sure he could answer himself. "I think a lot of us have grown up in a world where we learned the opposite first; where we learned all the negative things about being queer." Growing up as a gay South Asian in Edmonton in the '90s, he was well acquainted with the negatives — homophobia and a sense of isolation, just to start — but this was a chance to refocus.

He set up his film equipment in his living room and asked friends to contribute, then reached out to "people who had inspired me: Educators, activists, artists. I wanted a lot of people of colour; that was important to me." In the end, the film featured 34 people — but Shraya didn't want to stop there.



"I was increasingly aware that there was no way for me to actually fully capture the amazing diversity of the queer community," he says. That's where Tumblr came in. "That made it an open project. Anyone, anywhere, could submit their answer." Within six months, he had more than 200 submissions from around the world.

The idea for the book came from his friend Farzana Doctor, a Lambda-winning author and project contributor, who suggested that publishing a coffee-table book would be a great way of extending the reach of the project.

At first, Shraya wasn't convinced. "It's really powerful to see so many different queer bodies expressing what they love about being queer on film," he says. He worried that immediacy and intimacy would be lost on paper.

But then he thought about what the book would have meant to him as a young man. "If someone had handed me a book like that when I was 16, when I was struggling with who I was ... I couldn't have imagined something like this, then," he says.

Shraya approached his manager at George Brown, Dale Hall, with a proposal: If the department could help fund the project, he would donate the proceeds to a leadership award for LGBTQ students. "I gave a 10-minute presentation," he says, "and I said, 'Do you have any questions?' She said, 'Nope,' and that was it. She's been a real champion of this project."

With Hall's support, the book came together quickly. It features selections from the film and Tumblr, plus contributions made by audience members at screenings. Familiar faces, including Sook-Yin Lee and Tegan Quin, are surrounded by photos and quotes from queer people from all ages, races, orientations and corners of the globe.

Sales have been global, too. Shraya has shipped copies across North America, and to Germany, Peru, Brazil and India. They've already raised more than $11,000 for the Positive Space Award, and the book was recently nominated for a Lambda Literary Award.

In a world where so many cultural representations of the gay community have a tragic aspect, Shraya is happy to focus on the positive.

"Those [tragic] stories are important to showcase, but I also think it's important to show that we have rich lives," he says. "We build community, we make great art, we're hilarious. There are all these other facets about us that sometimes get lost."

What goes into designing a T-shirt? Revel & Riot's Emy Storey gives us insight into some of her creations online at metronews.ca.

When I met Vivek over 10 years ago, I was struck by how positive he was. Especially considering that we "met" via Vivek throwing a CD at me on stage, and narrowly missing my head! Backstage I was blown away by his candour. He has the most infectious laugh I've ever encountered in my life. Until recently I just thought of him as a dear friend and a very talented musician. But Vivek surprised me — and probably a lot of other people — by creating a massive body of work in the last few years that stepped far beyond music. Starting with an incredible and inspiring book called God Loves Hair, he embarked on a creative journey that has left songs, books, and movies in its wake. One of his most inspiring pieces is a book called What I Love About Being Queer. A collection of queer people describing what they love about being queer (duh?!). In my humble opinion, it's a coffee-table book that should be mandatory in every Canadian's household. I was thrilled to be part of it, and when my copy showed up at my house it moved me to tears. A truly lovely artist making a BIG difference in the world today. TEGAN QUIN

Campus centre a LGBTQ haven for all of Regina

Playing a double role. University of Regina Pride Centre fills gap for local LGBTQ community

JACOB MORGAN
jacob.morgan@metronews.ca

Leo Keiser, 26, is the executive director of the University of Regina Pride Centre for Sexuality and Gender Diversity — the only group of its kind in the city. COURTESY LEO KEISER

The executive director at the University of Regina Pride Centre for Sexuality and Gender Diversity doesn't only run a safe space for students.

Leo Keiser runs a safe space for the entire city.

"There is no designated downtown gender and sexually diverse health and wellness centre," says Keiser, a queer and trans* 26-year-old. "So we play a double role."

While Keiser said groups such as the Gay and Lesbian Community of Regina's social club and TransSask Support Services do valuable work, the pride centre fills a niche when it comes to educational outreach.

"I see the pride centre here as part of the bigger picture and a bigger network of folks who are demanding public acceptance," they said.

Some of the off-campus activities Keiser helps out with include arranging school anti-bullying workshops, collaborating with the committee that throws Queen City Pride and travelling to other towns in Saskatchewan.

"If there's any way that we can be supportive of the gender and sexually diverse initiatives in any of the communities surrounding us, we definitely want to do that," said Keiser.

One project they're especially excited about is a mentorship program for LGBTQ youth.

"Reducing isolation and providing community one-on-one is a super important thing to do," said Keiser. "There's something so profound in connecting with somebody else who is like you."

But with funding from tuition fees and students representing more than half of active members, the pride centre still has a major part to play on campus.

Last April, for instance, anti-gay speaker Peter LaBarbera arrived at the university to spread his hateful message.

Keiser said the pride centre was there to stage a peaceful counter-demonstration and give people "something better to look at when they were walking by."

And as someone originally from northern Manitoba who came out while attending the university, he knows how to welcome kids looking for the chance to feel proud.

"Seeing folks coming into first contact with the centre that way is really unique," they said. "It just gives me a better perspective for the work I do."

My mom jokes that she was running a LGBTQ drop-in centre when we were in high school. Our kitchen was always full to the brim with friends. Not all were queer, but a lot were struggling with issues around sexuality and gender. And my mom provided support, understanding and a shoulder to cry on. We were lucky to have her back then. And the LGBTQ people of Regina are lucky to have Leo Keiser and the Regina Pride Centre for Sexuality and Gender Diversity. Maybe my mom could stop by?

Saskatoon teen seeks gender, sexual equality in classroom

Television taught 19-year-old Thomas Gendzwill of Saskatoon about the aspects of life his high school failed to mention.

He remembers watching 1 Girl 5 Gays on MTV Canada — a show that speaks frankly about homosexual issues — after he came out as bisexual at 14. That's when he realized how his education was letting him down.

"I talk to some older gay men who are in their late 20s and they talk about Queer As Folk," said Gendzwill, who graduated last year. "1 Girl 5 Gays was my Queer As Folk."

But most other aspects of society are heteronormative, he said, so he still had a long way to go before fully understanding the many identities and variances captured under the LGBTQ banner.

Attending several forums over the past few months with the non-profit youth diversity initiative Jer's Vision gave Gendzwill the knowledge and confidence he needed to enact change.

"I was astounded that at 19, completely done high school, I had not learned a lot of these things," he said. "I was learning a whole bunch more about HIV and hepatitis C ... I was also learning about transgender people."

Now, Gendzwill is determined to bring equality into the classroom. He plans to reach out to the Gay Straight Alliances at public schools and develop a strategy for incorporating standardized LGBTQ curricula into sexual education.

"I feel as though sex ed is a great platform for kids to learn about our community," he said.

Gendzwill added that this would both lift the stigma of certain STIs and reduce anxiety for youth who don't know about gay and lesbian sex or how to properly minimize their risk of contracting life-changing infections.

"It's important that kids learn about how to be safe," said Gendzwill.

He also said that having a single-stall gender-neutral washroom in every school would create a safer space for queer and trans* students.

One day, Gendzwill hopes to bring all of his interests together to work in the media industry that first inspired him and make it more inclusive. JACOB MORGAN/METRO

Waving the PFLAG for trans awareness

A new campaign from PFLAG Canada (Parents, Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays) is raising awareness that transgender people are not simply deciding to change gender, but trying to make how they feel inside match how they look outside. Launched in April, the print campaign features a man and a woman wearing masks of the opposite gender with the line: Not All Prisons Have Bars. Support Trans Awareness. A video campaign has also been launched.

As part of it's previous Sharing Out Stories campaign, PFLAG featured a mother, Jennifer, sharing the story of her transgender child. Visit metronews.ca to see this video. METRO

PFLAG has a new campaign focused on Trans awareness. Often people forget the "T" in "LGBTQ" — and not just in the mainstream, but in the LGBTQ community as well. We're glad to see PFLAG on the frontlines of this next very important human rights fight.

In the pink

Jer's Vision gives youth safer space

Founded nine years ago, Jer's Vision has been engaging and empowering youth across Canada in addressing homophobia, transphobia and bullying.

The youth-run organization offers workshops, mentors schools and youth communities to improve and create safer space, and holds LGBTQ & Ally youth conferences across the country to support youth in running diversity clubs.

Jer's Vision is also behind the International Day of Pink (held the second Wednesday in April), when more than 9.5 million Canadians wear Pink to stop bullying, homophobia and transphobia.

Jeremy Dias, who, after coming out in high school in Sault St. Marie, was severely bullied, created the organization. When he was 17, he filed a legal case against the school and school board and at 21 he won the Canada's second-largest human rights settlement. He used that money to found Jer's Vision: Canada's Youth Diversity Initiative, the international Day of Pink and the Jeremy Dias Scholarship.

For more information on Jer's Vision, visit jersvision.org. METRO

I never wear pink. It's not really my style. Or my colour. But every second Tuesday in April I do. Why? Jeremy Dias did the opposite of what so many people who are bullied and not accepted when they are young do — he ran toward the system that failed him, fought it, won and made change. He didn't run away. He continues to fight, make change, educate and inspire. So when he says wear Pink — I say, yes sir.

Former teacher dies in hoarder's squalor, cat in lap

California. Rita Corpin, 72, was pronounced dead in her yard of natural causes; she owned three homes

Orange County firefighters wearing hazmat suits had to climb over vegetation and trash piled 1.5 metres high to get to a yard where a woman died in a chair amid debris with a kitten in a carrier on her lap.

County Register reports that firefighters arrived Tuesday night at the Rosewood Avenue home of Rita Corpin, 72, who was pronounced dead in her yard. No foul play is suspected.

Help was available

"I wish we would have known about this. We probably could have salvaged her."

Fire Insp. Darren Johnson
A member of the Orange County Task Force on Hoarding's executive committee.

Corpin owned two other Orange County homes where animal control officials attempted Wednesday to capture more than 60 feral cats. The retired high school history teacher owned two dogs and fed area cats regularly, Santa Ana police Cpl. Anthony Bertagna said.

Because her home was so full of debris, Corpin lived alone in a truck in her driveway, Bertagna said. It took officials several hours to remove Corpin's body from the property because of the trash and overgrown plants.

Over time, the hoarding and neglect at Corpin's properties prompted 26 contacts by Santa Ana city officials, city spokeswoman Tanya Lyon said.

The city levied fines and warned Corpin about her properties' poor condition, but she eventually refused to allow city officials on her properties, Lyon said. By making small changes, Corpin prevented the city from seeking a search warrant to perform inspections.

The Orange County Task Force on Hoarding said the group had not worked with Corpin. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Businessman's grave ransacked

Three people, including a daughter, are accused of ransacking the grave of a U.S. businessman in search of his "real will," only to find a pack of cigarettes in his hand.

Eddie Nash died of a heart attack in 2004 at age 68. His cemetery vault in New Hampshire was found cracked last month, the casket opened and his remains searched. The body was left intact.

An arrest affidavit names Ginette Dowse, 71, Michael Day, 37, and Nash's daughter, Melanie Lynch, 52.

Lynch had made comments about her father being buried with "the real will," police said.

Day was arrested Tuesday and jailed on charges of interference with a cemetery and criminal mischief. His lawyer didn't return a phone call. Dowse and Lynch are out on bail. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canadians have admitted in a recent global survey they are sometimes lax with their online security even though 56 per cent say they have already been a victim of a data breach. ISTOCK

Canadians do little to protect themselves online

Poll. We value our privacy but aren't proactive in preserving it

Canadians are more concerned about their online privacy than many of their global counterparts and yet they're also less likely to take proactive measures to secure their personal information, suggests a new study.

Nearly two-thirds of Canadians polled said they believed they had less privacy online than they did a year ago, according to a report by the IT company EMC, which conducted online surveys with 15,000 web users in 15 countries.

Globally, the average was 59 per cent.

Canadians were the second-least likely to say that they'd be willing to trade some of their privacy for "easier access to information and knowledge," behind only the German-born respondents.

About 85 per cent of the Canadians polled said they believed it will become more difficult to cling onto a safe degree of privacy online in the next five years, versus 81 per cent of all respondents.

But Canadians admitted they could do more to protect themselves on the Internet.

Nearly seven in 10 said they did not regularly change their online passwords, versus the global average of 62 per cent.

One in three said they didn't worry about changing their privacy settings when joining social networks, which was in line with the global average.

And about four in 10 said they didn't have a password protecting their cellphone from being accessed, compared to 39 per cent of all the respondents.

Woman charged with trying to have family killed

Authorities in the U.S. have arrested a 19-year-old woman they say tried to have someone she met on Facebook kill her family.

But the person she was talking with over the site was actually her aunt.

Al.com reports that Marissa Williams was arrested Monday and charged with solicitation of murder. She was being held in an Alabama jail on $30,000 US bond.

Williams admitted to the plot but said she didn't really mean for anyone to be killed. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Surveillance. White House pushing local cops to zip it

The Obama administration has been quietly advising local police not to disclose details about surveillance technology they are using to sweep up basic cellphone data from entire neighbourhoods, The Associated Press has learned.

Citing security reasons, the U.S. has intervened in routine state public-records cases and criminal trials regarding use of the technology. This has resulted in police departments withholding materials or heavily censoring documents in rare instances when they disclose anything about the purchase and use of such powerful equipment.

Federal involvement in local open-records proceedings is unusual. It comes at a time when President Barack Obama has called for more transparency about spying in the wake of disclosures about classified federal surveillance programs. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The wait is over. Brazil kicked off the 2014 FIFA World Cup with a football-style Carnival before thousands of dancing yellow-clad fans. To get you in the game, Metro has you covered with the latest from Brazil.

J-Lo helps World Cup kick off in style

Singers Jennifer Lopez, Pitbull and Claudia Leitte perform during the opening ceremony of the 2014 FIFA World Cup Brazil before the Group A match between Brazil and Croatia at Arena de Sao Paulo on June 12, 2014 in Sao Paulo, Brazil. J-Lo — who turned up for the performance despite earlier reports that she wouldn't be able to attend — rapper Pitbull and pop star Leitte bounced around a giant stage that resembled a peeled melon. They sang the World Cup theme We Are One as Brazilian band Olodum banged drums below, on Brazil's Valentine's Day. Sticker shock in Brazil

World Cup visitors, welcome to Brazil, land of soccer, sun and sky-high prices.

Unlike nearby Latin American nations where a tourist's U.S. dollar or European Union euro seemingly stretches forever, Brazil is astoundingly expensive.

If one's budget isn't immediately busted by the flight or the hotel, it will soon be done in by the $10 US caipirinha cocktail and the $17 cheeseburger. And those are the prices city-dwelling Brazilians saw even before the World Cup set off a new standard of sticker shock.

The dizzying prices are referred to here as the "Custo Brasil," or "Brazil Cost" — the mixture of high taxes and steep import tariffs, combined with bad infrastructure, a dose of inefficiency and a thick shot of bureaucracy.

Demand leading up to a big event like the World Cup naturally raises prices. But, since costs already were high to begin with, tourists should prepare to dig deeply into their wallets and not be too miffed to receive goods or services of inferior quality, said Rafael Alcadipani, a business administration professor at the Getulio Vargas Foundation, Brazil's top think-tank.

"Anything you buy in Brazil will be more expensive than in the United States or Europe, but the quality is going to be worse," he said.

Hotel rates in many of the World Cup host cities more than doubled ahead of the tournament. Massachusetts-based TripAdvisor reports visitors to Rio will face the highest prices, with hotel rates averaging $445 per night. Even the more affordable host cities will set travellers back a good amount: $457 per day in Cuiaba and $477 in Sao Paulo.

"The Cup prices are ridiculous. Everything shot up. The only thing you can buy in Brazil is a bikini, a cachaca (Brazilian sugar cane liquor) and a pair of Havaianas (sandals)," said Gillian Santos, a Brazilian who now lives in Belgium.

Will soccer outshine World Cup protests?

The sun rose Thursday on a tropical nation hosting its first World Cup in 64 years. Nearly half the world's population, well over three billion spectators, are expected to watch soccer's premier event and get a glimpse of the country that in two years will host the Summer Olympics.

But just hours before play was to begin, it still wasn't clear which Brazil we would see. Would it be the irreverent nation known for its festive, freewheeling spirit? Or would it be the country that, for the past year, has been a hotbed of fury over poor public services, discontent over a political system widely viewed as corrupt, and deep anger over the $11.5 billion US spent on hosting the World Cup?

"The world is going to see multitudes cheering for soccer — but also demanding that our country change," Helen Santos, a school teacher, said as she walked home in Rio de Janeiro. "The world needs to see that we're a serious country. We're not just a nation of soccer, but a country striving and demanding the government provide better education and health care. The world needs to see the reality of Brazil, not just the sport."

Street protests have lessened in size since last year, when Brazilians staged raucous rallies against the government, overshadowing the Confederations Cup soccer tournament. For two weeks, dozens of places were roiled by unrest. Whether Brazilians have moved past such disruption is uncertain.

"I hope the soccer outshines the protests, but I also know there remains a climate of anger," said Edson Carvalho, an office assistant watching 10 barefoot young men play a pick-up soccer match in Rio's Botafogo neighbourhood.

However, protesters and Brazilian police clashed in Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro and at least three other World Cup cities on Thursday ahead of the first match.

About 300 protesters marched along Rio's Copacabana beach. In Sao Paulo, more than 300 demonstrators gathered along a main highway leading to the stadium.

In Belo Horizonte, another Cup host city, about 200 protesters clashed with police at a rally in a central plaza.

In southern Brazil, Porto Alegre, another host city, saw about 1,000 people gather, with some breaking windows and hurling stones at police.

About 150 protesters in the capital city of Brasilia were scattered by police using tear gas and rubber bullets,

N.L. Sealers blame thick ice, blocked markets for drop in landed pelts

The Canadian Sealers Association blames heavy sea ice and trade issues for a big drop in the commercial hunt off Newfoundland this spring.

Executive director Frank Pinhorn says just fewer than 55,000 harp seals were landed, compared to 91,000 last year and 69,000 in 2012.

Pinhorn says about 65 boats went out compared to 45 the year before, but many had trouble getting through unusually thick sea ice.

He says the number of seals landed was far below the federal quota of 400,000 while the price held steady at about $35 for the best pelts.

The association is calling on Ottawa to more aggressively deal with seal product bans that block access to markets in several countries.

The federal government has challenged a European Union ban at the World Trade Organization but lost again on appeal last month. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Superstars join fight against wartime rape

Ending 'culture of impunity'. Brad Pitt joins Angelina Jolie at London summit tackling sexual violence in conflict zones

Brad Pitt joined Angelina Jolie at a London summit on sexual violence Thursday, lending the couple's star power to the campaign to end rape in war zones.

The four-day London conference is organized by British Foreign Secretary William Hague and Jolie, a United Nations special envoy.

They hope representatives of the more than 100 countries present will back a new protocol laying out how sexual violence in conflict zones should be investigated and prosecuted. They say they want to end the "culture of impunity" for wartime sex crimes.

Pitt watched from the audience as Jolie and Hague spoke to delegates at the east London conference venue.

Billed as the biggest-ever summit on the subject, the gathering has drawn diplomats, officials, charity representatives and survivors of wartime rape.

Jolie said the meeting, which ends Friday, was being held "for all the forgotten, hidden survivors who have been made to feel ashamed or been abandoned."

"And for the children of rape — we want the whole world to hear their stories and understand that this injustice cannot be tolerated, and that sorrow and compassion are not enough," she said.

Hague and Jolie have made an odd but effective double act as they've campaigned against sexual violence for the past two years.

Hague said the Maleficent star "has the power to speak to the whole world, to raise awareness, change attitudes. Governments like the one I am a member of hold in their hands levers of decision-making and action.

"And this combination can be formidable." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday sided with juice maker Pom Wonderful in its long-running false advertising dispute with Coca-Cola. MATT ROURKE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

It's Pom Wonderful news for juice maker

Sweet justice? Top U.S. court rules Pom can go forward with a lawsuit alleging a competitor's label is misleading

Coca-Cola's version of pomegranate juice is not quite the real thing, and a competitor has another chance to prove it in court.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday sided with juice maker Pom Wonderful in its long-running false advertising dispute with the Coca-Cola Co., a decision that could open the door to more litigation against food makers for deceptive labelling.

The justices ruled 8-0 that Pom can go forward with a lawsuit alleging the label on a "Pomegranate Blueberry" beverage offered by Coke's Minute Maid unit is misleading because 99 per cent of the drink is apple and grape juice.

Lower courts had ruled in favour of Coke because the label conforms to the law and to Food and Drug Administration rules. But the Supreme Court reversed, finding that the juice label may technically comply with FDA rules but may still mislead consumers for different reasons.

Writing for the court, Justice Anthony Kennedy said federal FDA laws and trademark laws complement each other in the regulation of misleading labels. He said it is unlikely Congress intended FDA law to preclude all trademark actions in the food and beverage arena because that would mean "less policing" of misleading labels than in other industries.

Energy. Soon you'll be able to give yourself and your phone a jolt at Starbucks

Soon you may not have to fumble or fight for a power outlet to charge your phone at your neighbourhood Starbucks.

Starbucks and Duracell say they are rolling out Powermat wireless charging devices in stores in San Francisco. The charging spots will expand into other major markets in 2015, and the companies plan to put the devices in all Starbucks and Teavana locations over time.

The companies say stores will have "Powermat Spots," designated areas on tables and counters where customers can put their compatible smartphones and charge them wirelessly.

Most smartphones and devices on the market now are not compatible with the Powermat stations, although some with the built-in capability are starting to emerge, according to IHS, a market researcher. People can also buy Powermat accessories to charge devices that aren't compatible, Starbucks noted.

Trending. Twitter follows other tech companies, will no longer have a COO

Twitter's chief operating officer, Ali Rowghani, has resigned from his post and won't be replaced as CEO Dick Costolo seeks more direct involvement with the company's engineering and product teams.

Rowghani joined Twitter in 2010 as chief financial officer and became COO two years later. Before that, he served as CFO at Pixar Animation Studios for nine years.

Twitter Inc. said in regulatory filing Thursday that Rowghani's responsibilities will be shifted to other executives. It did not give a reason for his departure. With the shift, Twitter joins other tech companies such as Google, Yahoo, Apple and Netflix that do not have a COO. Facebook's Sheryl Sandberg is a notable exception.

Rowghani had been tasked with expanding Twitter's user base, but this has not happened as quickly as investors had hoped. The San Francisco-based social media company has been trying to broaden its reach, most recently by luring in World Cup fans who want to follow teams and players using its service.

1 World Cup. You say football; I say soccer. Whatever, it's the biggest sports tournament on Earth, and it finally got underway in Brazil, despite a melee of protests, strikes and various other failures to launch. The Canadian team is chronically unable to qualify for the tournament, so we have to hope for somebody else. This year's favourites are Brazil, Argentina, Germany and Spain, but why not root for Africa's Cameroon, which punches way above its weight, unlike Canada?

2 Dead heat. Another tourney that wasn't resolved before my column-writing deadline was Thursday's Ontario election. Voters seemed underwhelmed by the choices: the Liberals and Kathleen Wynne, the Conservatives and Tim Hudak, and the NDP and Andrea Horwath. Before results were in, pollsters were calling it too close to call. Of course, after blowing both the B.C. and Alberta calls, pollsters have a recent history of being wrong, so maybe they were just hedging their bets. Horwath is the Cameroon of Ontario politics, and her chances seemed about as good.

3 Right, right, you're bloody well right. Speaking of politics, this is what it has come down to in the U.S.: An extreme right-wing Republican, Eric Cantor, who is also the Majority Leader of the House of Representatives, lost the primary, which is basically the nomination, to an even more extreme right wing Tea Party Republican, the appropriately named David Brat, who accused his seven-term rival of not being extreme enough. It worked, at least among the anvil chorus voting for Republican primaries in Virginia. "It's a miracle from God!" crowed Brat, revealing that God is registered to vote in Virginia.

4 Another day, another rampage. Hardly a day goes by without another shooting rampage, the latest a protracted gun battle on the usually bucolic seawall along Vancouver's trendy False Creek. Crazed gunmen and mass shootings have become such a common occurrence, we're almost numb. But it took a photo of Danny, the K9 companion of RCMP officer Dave Ross, to bring the tragedy of gun violence home. The photo, of Danny the German shepherd sniffing his master's hat and looking around for him at the funeral, went viral this week, and will continue to haunt us in the days to come.

5 There's always Justin Bieber. It's not quite comic relief, but it will do. Notorious Canadian twit Justin Bieber continues to make the wrong kind of news, this time for getting caught on video using the N word, not once but twice. It doesn't really matter that both incidents happened when he was 14 and 15. His goose is now pretty much cooked and he's barely out of his teens . Fresh out of PR spin, he's turned to God, and was recently baptized in a New York pastor's bathtub. Well, whatever works, but I suspect God is too busy helping the Tea Party Brat to take care of ours.

Pothole vigilantism goes artsy

The perfect pothole might not exist for many people — but for artist Jim Bachor, it's one with a nice oval shape.

Bachor began filling potholes a little more than a year ago, after one in front of his house became a hassle. He doesn't just fill them with cement, though. He's turned pothole-filling into a public art project. He fills them with mosaics. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public art, practical outcome

While his art isn't a permanent solution to the problem, it's at least a small fix, he says. The city hasn't shut down his project, and some community members have expressed gratitude.

Gerry Shaheen says Bachor and his crew are welcome anytime to fill potholes in his city. "I'll pave the way for them," Shaheen said with smirk. "No pun intended." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Designs

- Bachor uses the Chicago city flag design in his pothole art.
- Some versions hold phone numbers to local auto repair shops, while others simply read POTHOLE.
- His most recent installment — #21914 — pokes fun at the huge number of potholes that exist in the city.

Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum are producers on 22 Jump Street. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

The 21 Jump Street high school undercover cops Schmidt and Jenko (Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum) are back, but this time they're narco cops. That is until they botch an investigation into drug lord Ghost's (Peter Stormare) operation. Their failure gets them demoted back to the 22 Jump Street (they moved across the road) program. Jump Street's Captain Dickson (Ice Cube) sends them undercover, as unlikely brothers Brad and Doug McQuaid, to college to arrest the supplier of a drug named WHYPHY (WiFi). The bumbling, but self-confident duo infiltrates the college, but campus life threatens to blow apart their partnership.

Jump Street. Tatum and Hill's second outing as bumbling cops takes self-aware jabs at the business of sequels

Richard: Mark, Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum are producers on the new Jump Street film, which, I guess, explains all the jokes about how much everything cost.

At one point Hill actually says, "It's way more expensive for no reason at all."

I don't know how much the movie cost to make, but the self-aware jokes did make me laugh even though it is essentially a remake of the first film, with a few more Laurel and Hardy slapstick gags and amped-up explosions.

What was your take?

Mark: Richard, I liked this instalment way more than the previous outing.

I loved all the self-referential gags, including the brilliant end-credits that hilariously make fun of the inevitable sequels that will follow.

I credit the directors, Phil Lord and Chris Miller, for the knowing pop culture sophistication they brought to the film.

They directed the first one, too, but they've grown more confident since their Lego Movie hit, which also tweaked the audience's expectations in a similar way.

RC: The end credit sequence, which maps out the next sequels from number 3 to installment 43 — they go to Beauty School and Magic School among other places of higher learning — is probably the funniest part of the movie.

The stuff that comes before is amiable, relying on the Mutt and Jeff chemistry of Hill and Tatum for laughs. It's boisterous and aims to please, but best of all are the self-referential jokes.

By clowning around about the difficulty in making the sequel better than the original, they're winking at the audience, acknowledging that this is basically a spoof of Hollywood sequels.

It's subversive, meta and kind of brilliant.

MB: Yep. Because I can see explosions and pratfalls in any "action comedy"; it's the subversive stuff that makes this movie stand apart.

The intergender fight sequence between Jonah Hill and Jillian Bell (who is incredible throughout the film) is as subversive a take on sexual politics and "rape culture" that you will ever find.

It's these kinds of scenes that kept me laughing through the picture. The black stoner twins, played expertly by The Lucas Bros, were a masterpiece of writing and comic timing.

RC: I agree, but ill-timed jokes about Maya Angelou and Tracy Morgan were sore thumbs for me, but that's more coincidence, I guess than bad taste.

MB: I don't think those jokes were deliberate, but they sure broke the spell for me.

But then Ice Cube's comic rants got me back.

Why Australia is a perfect setting for a post-apocalyptic film

The Rover. Aussie filmmaker takes to his home to film tale about a man out for revenge in a hostile world

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

The Rover opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

Australian filmmaker David Michod made quite a first impression in Hollywood with his 2010 debut, Animal Kingdom, so a lot of eyes were on him as he chose a followup. That choice is now here in the form of The Rover, a post-apocalyptic tale about a man (Guy Pearce) out for revenge against the guys who stole his car.

Australia seems to lend itself to these post-apocalyptic settings.

I love this kind of movie, people stranded in a really inhospitable landscape. And in some ways it doesn't get more inhospitable than Australia largely because 80 per cent of the country is desert and there are so few people out there. It's both epically beautiful and wholly terrifying when you're out there, because you know that only a couple of little things would need to go wrong and you could die. For instance, New Zealand doesn't really have any animals, so there's lots of beautiful stuff to look at, but it also makes it a little bit dull. I realized how much I love roaming in the bush in Australia because at any moment something that might kill you could pop out.

Of course, in The Rover it's more the people that might kill you.

In a way, it's a kind of geopolitical inversion of the world in present day, because the world of The Rover in a way sort of exists on the planet today. It just happens to be in super-violent, resource-rich countries like Nigeria or West African states where there still is an infrastructure and official organization, but it's just incredibly cutthroat, and there is violence bubbling under the surface at all times.

There is a sort of sense of anger threaded through this narrative.

I can't remember at what point in the writing process this started to happen, but I started to funnel a lot of my anger and despair into the world of the movie and specifically into Guy's character — anger at the willingness that the people today seem to have to just let the world fall into disrepair solely to service the rampant greed of a very small number of people. You look at the invasion of Iraq on a certain level, and it would seem to me that the only reason that administration embarked on that ludicrous endeavour was to enrich their friends. I mean, to cause so much suffering in order to enrich a small number of people is pathologically evil. And it's difficult, when you think about these things, not to get angry.

DreamWorks Animation returns to the world of dragons and Vikings in this sequel to their successful 2010 outing How to Train Your Dragon. The original film followed the exploits of a Viking chief's son, who must capture a dragon in order to mark his passage into manhood and prove his worthiness to the tribe.

Card countin' Affleck gets kicked out of Windsor casino

A day trip to Caesars Windsor turned into a dark night for Ben Affleck last month.

According to Radar Online, the 41-year-old actor took a break from filming Batman v. Superman in Detroit to hit the Canadian casino on May 31. "He sat down and played for roughly 20 minutes before security heard he was there. They made the dealers stop what they were doing and asked him to leave. Ben seemed pretty mad," a source told Radar.

Affleck is a well-known card shark, having been banned from casinos in Las Vegas for counting cards; his reputation appears to have preceded him at Caesars. METRO

Pippa embarks on bike race across this side of the pond

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York City

Next time you're driving in America, glance at the bike lane. Do you see a lovely butt and very shiny hair? You may be sharing the road with a princess-adjacent socialite. Beginning June 15, Pippa Middleton is biking across America.

Pippa and her brother James Middleton are participating in the Race Across America, a cross-country bicycle race from Oceanside, Calif., to Annapolis, Md.

They'll be part of an eight-person relay team with their friend James Matthews, raising money for the foundation named for James' brother Michael Matthews. Michael Matthews passed away at the age of 22 while descending from Mount Everest. The foundation begun in his name raises money for education for poor children around the world. If you want to cheer on the Middletons, I would aim for the nice flat Illinois bit to see her at her best. I imagine the Rockies are terrible for hair shininess.

Bieber says I love you, one deleted Instagram photo at a time

Social media is the bane of the fickle heart, as Justin Bieber is proving with his erratic postings pertaining to on-again, off-again girlfriend Selena Gomez.

While it has seemed that the couple had finally split for good in recent months, Bieber doesn't seem so sure.

Just this week, he posted a close-up photo of the two in an embrace with the caption, "Our love is unconditional."

Suggesting a tentative Romeo, he quickly deleted the posting — but not before many of his 16 million Instagram followers screen-grabbed it and re-posted it.

Pink is the new white when it comes to casual back deck sipping wine. Rosé has been the warm weather go-to for Europeans for years and Canada is starting to catch up.

Sadly, our opinion of blush wines has been influenced by white zinfandel: a popular, but polarizing, version that's typically confectionary and usually sweet (most rosé is dry). Though pleasant enough, their reputation as a simple tipple for those new to wine hasn't done classic rosé styles any favours.

A rosé's pink hue comes from dark grape skins coming into contact for a short while with the juice. The longer they're together, the darker the wine.

Spain has a history of rosé production using indigenous grape varietals. The Marqués de Cáceres 2013 Rosado ($13.95 - $16.29) is made from tempranillo and its balance of juicy, berry fruit with a refreshing dryness is a benchmark. As well as tasting great, rosé wines are fantastic with food — especially if the dish is eclectic or has an aggressive, dominating flavour.

Grilled Caramelized Onion and Feta Pizza.
Don't limit this family favourite to a hot oven. It can easily be made in your backyard

Onions are a bit of a reflex buy for many. Every time these people go to the grocer they always buy a bag of onions. They're a kitchen staples so you must always be about to run out, right? It's a good theory. But if that was the case, you wouldn't currently have 15 pounds of onions on the counter.

That's where this grill-friendly way of using a whole mess of caramelized onions comes in. The pizza is topped with onions and garlic, spiked with caraway seeds and golden raisins, finished with roasted red peppers, pine nuts, and crumbled feta for a kind of Middle Eastern take on grilled pizza

1. Set the pizza crust, in the bag, on the counter to come to room temperature.

2. Meanwhile, in large, heavy pot, such as a cast-iron Dutch oven, over medium heat, melt the butter. Add onions and cook, stirring often, for 20 minutes. Stir in raisins, garlic and caraway seeds, then cook another 3 minutes, or until onions are significantly reduced and caramelized. Stir in the red peppers, then transfer the mixture to a bowl and set aside.

Ingredients

- 20-oz ball purchased pizza crust
- 2 tbsp butter
- 2 medium yellow onions, thinly sliced
- 1/3 cup golden raisins
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tbsp caraway seeds
- 12-oz jar roasted red peppers, drained and sliced
- Olive oil
- 1/3 cup pine nuts
- 1/2 cup crumbled feta cheese

3. When the onions are done, heat the grill to medium-high. On a lightly floured counter, roll the pizza dough out to a 14-inch round. Brush the top of the dough with oil, then transfer it to a large plate or platter for carrying it to the grill. Have your remaining ingredients prepared, then bring everything to the grill.

4. Flip the dough onto the grill, oiled side down, and cook for 5 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and puffed. Reduce the heat to medium-low, then brush the top of the dough with oil. Use tongs to flip the dough.

5. Spread the onion mixture evenly over the crust, then sprinkle it with pine nuts and feta. Cover the grill and cook for 4 to 6 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and the feta is softened. Serve immediately.

Neymar's brace keeps party jumping in Brazil

World Cup. Hosts open tournament with 3-1 win; Croatia shaken by controversial penalty

Neymar gave Brazil a winning start to its home World Cup, scoring twice to lead the host nation to an unconvincing 3-1 victory over Croatia in the opening game on Thursday.

In his 50th match with Brazil, the 22-year-old forward scored a goal in each half to help the hosts survive an early scare and escape disaster in front of a packed Itaquerao Stadium after Croatia had taken an early lead.

Marcelo found his own net while trying to clear a low cross by Ivica Olic in the 11th minute, but Neymar then showed why the nation's high hopes are all pinned on him.

He equalized in the 29th minute, clearing a defender in midfield before making a run toward the edge of the area and firing a perfectly placed low shot that went in off the post.

The game turned on a controversial penalty awarded by Japanese referee Yuichi Nishimura in the 71st minute when striker Fred went down inside the area under minimal contact from defender Dejan Lovren.

Keeping his cool

"I stayed calm because if I let myself get down I would have hurt the team."

Brazilian player Marcelo
on scoring an own goal

Neymar scored from the spot for his 33rd goal with Brazil. The Barcelona star got a standing ovation when he was substituted near the end of the match.

"It's important to start these tournaments with the right foot, with a victory," Neymar said. "I'm happy that I got to score, but the entire team deserves credit. We maintained our calm and showed we could battle back."

The Croatians were furious.

"If that was a penalty, we should be playing basketball. Those kinds of fouls are penalized there," Croatia coach Niko Kovac said.

"That is shameful, this is not a World Cup referee. He had one kind of criteria for them and another for us. The rules were not the same," Kovac said.

As Croatia searched desperately for an equalizer, Oscar added to the lead in the first minute of injury time with a toe poke from just outside the penalty area.

Croatia had a few good chances toward the end and had a goal disallowed in the 83rd after the referee ruled Olic had fouled Brazil goalkeeper Julio Cesar.

Spurs lay South Beach smackdown

The San Antonio Spurs have three more chances to grab the championship trophy that slipped away last year.

The way they're dominating the Miami Heat, they might need just one.

Kawhi Leonard had 20 points and 14 rebounds, and the Spurs routed the Heat again, winning 107-86 on Thursday night to open a commanding 3-1 lead in the NBA Finals.

The Spurs can win their fifth NBA championship with a victory at home in Game 5 on Sunday and avenge their seven-game loss to Miami last year. And if the Heat are going to deny them again, it will take the biggest comeback in NBA Finals history.

LeBron James tried to keep the Heat in it with 28 points and eight rebounds, but Dwyane Wade was just 1-of-10 through three quarters and finished with 10 points.

No team has overcome a 3-1 deficit in the championship round, and the way they were outclassed twice on their home floor makes it hard to imagine the two-time champions being the first.

Tony Parker added 19 points, and Tim Duncan had 10 points and 11 rebounds for the Spurs, who shot 57 per cent from the field.

The Spurs lost twice in Miami to end last year's finals, their only defeat in the championship round. They won their two games in South Florida this time by a combined 40 points.

If the Heat force a Game 6, it would be in Miami Tuesday.

Best not good enough in this cup final

NHL. After Game 4 effort fell short, Kings will try to wrap up cup in sunny California

After feeling satisfied about his team's play in three losses to open the Stanley Cup final, New York Rangers coach Alain Vigneault could easily empathize with the Los Angeles Kings when the roles were reversed in Game 4.

"It was a real tough game, I think, for L.A," Vigneault said. "It was probably their best game of the playoffs that they've played against us."

And it was a loss, as the Kings failed to finish off the sweep thanks to 40 saves by Henrik Lundqvist, one by Anton Stralman and one by a combination of snow built up in the crease and Derek Stepan.

That the Rangers needed so much luck and strong goaltending only underscored just how dominant Los Angeles was.

Just don't tell the results-oriented Kings that. Even after players talked after wins about needing to play better, the self-criticism was turned up despite outshooting the Rangers 41-19.

"At the end of the day, we weren't good enough to win," captain Dustin Brown said. "It's about finding a way to be better."

The chance to do that comes in Friday's Game 5 back in Los Angeles with the Kings still in command of the series and the cup waiting nearby.

After Game 4 at Madison Square Garden, it didn't feel as though the Kings were on the cusp of the title, like it did after they went up three games to none. All around the visiting locker-room there was talk about what areas needed to be better, from start to finish.

"We still probably could play better for a full game," fourth-line centre Mike Richards said. "It took us a little bit to get into it again for whatever reason."

Lesser role

Richards a rare sight

Brad Richards looked to be on his way out of New York in 2013, when former Rangers coach John Tortorella not only demoted the veteran centre but scratched him in the playoffs.

A year later, coach Alain Vigneault started down the same path by putting the 34-year-old on left wing of the Rangers' fourth line in Game 4 of the Stanley Cup final. Richards played just nine minutes 22 seconds at even strength and a total of 13:20.

Vigneault said he met with his lines individually, including Richards, Brian Boyle and Derek Dorsett. He wanted to spell out his reasoning and assignments.

"I mean, at this time of the year it's only about one thing: It's about the team," Vigneault said Wednesday after the Rangers' 2-1 win.

Richards has no points in the final and just four goals and four assists in 23 games since a strong opener against the Philadelphia Flyers. THE CANADIAN PRESSW

Players union accepts league's new deal

The CFL Players' Association has voted to accept a new collective bargaining agreement with the league.

The union said in a statement Thursday night that its players voted to accept the five-year contract reached Saturday with the CFL.

"It's a YES!" offensive lineman Peter Dyakowski, a player rep with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, tweeted. "We've got a new CBA!

"It's time to get back to football! #Everybodywins."

Split vote

"The mood is mixed. Guys are entitled to their own opinion and every man is going to make his own choice."

Argonauts centre Jeff Keeping, a member of the union executive

The CFL's board of governors is scheduled to vote on the deal Friday and the expectation is they'll accept it.

The CFLPA didn't provide a breakdown of the votes but a majority of players — 50 per cent plus one — on six of the nine CFL teams was required for the deal to be accepted.

The players voted in favour despite many expressing their unhappiness publicly and on social media about the deal. It offers a $5-million salary cap in the first year of the agreement after the CFLPA had originally sought a $6.24-million cap.

It's just 'Johnny Backup' for now

Johnny Manziel's No. 2 jersey has double meaning.

He's behind Brian Hoyer.

Browns coach Mike Pettine said Hoyer is "securely ahead" in the competition to be Cleveland's starting quarterback this season, but his lead over Manziel isn't "insurmountable."

After the Browns ended their three-day mandatory mini-camp Thursday, Pettine sized up the battle as a friendly fight that will heat up when the team opens training camp late in July.

NBA. Billion-Air Jordan: Hoops great still on the rise

Michael Jordan has reached billionaire status.

Forbes Magazine estimated Thursday that Jordan's equity as owner of the NBA's Charlotte Hornets is $416 million and his net worth outside of the team is $600 million. It reported Jordan now owns 89.5 per cent of the Hornets.

Jordan's spokeswoman Estee Portnoy confirmed to The Associated Press that Jordan purchased an additional stake in the Hornets in January of 2013, but wouldn't say how much. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There was something unusual in the opening round of the U.S. Open.

A bunch of scores in the 60s.

The best one of all was turned in by Martin Kaymer.

His confidence spurred by a win at The Players Championship, Kaymer birdied three of the last five holes Thursday for a 5-under 65, the lowest score from any of the three Opens played at Pinehurst No. 2.

The German got up and down for par at the 18th hole, rolling in a testy six-foot putt to beat the 66 shot by Sweden's Peter Hedblom during the second round in 2005.

Graeme McDowell, Kevin Na and Brendon de Jonge were three shots back.

Kaymer beat a loaded field at The Players last month, snapping a stretch of 29 tournaments without a victory stretching over 18 months.

Ten other players were in the clubhouse at 69, meaning there were more under-par rounds in this opening round than the last two years combined.

Murray finally loses on grass

Andy Murray was denied his 20th successive win on grass when he was beaten 7-6 (10), 6-2 by Radek Stepanek in the third round at Queen's Club on Thursday.

Murray, the defending champion and No. 3 seed, claimed his first match win at Queen's in 2005 and went on to win the Wimbledon warmup three times.

But he failed to take advantage of eight set points after leading the first-set tiebreaker 6-2, and Stepanek survived to convert with his second set point.

Rafael Nadal was knocked out in the second round of the grass-court Gerry Weber Open on Thursday, losing 6-4, 6-1 to German wild card Dustin Brown.

"The only way I could have tried to do more was resisting with my serve, something I hadn't practiced a lot these days," said Nadal.

Brown, the world No. 85, broke Nadal's serve at the fifth attempt to win the first set, and he pulled off two audacious lobs in succession to break the Spaniard again early in the second. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You may not be able to make sense of what is happening at the moment but don't worry. You aren't the only one who is having a hard time getting a grip on reality. Once the full moon fades all will be revealed.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The more you socialize now, the more likely it is you'll learn something to your advantage. Before the day is over you will be good friends with someone who shares your beliefs, ideals and taste for adventure.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Resist the temptation to tell an employer what you really think of them today. It won't work out right. If you cannot say something nice then it might be wise to say nothing at all. Think of your future. SALLY BROMPTON
